

Guam-PIC Policy 1.3: Code of Conduct

In addition to making progress towards Guam-PIC's aim and profession-wide and program-specific competencies, interns are expected to follow Guam-PIC's Code of Conduct.

Because of Guam's unique rural island culture and the importance of a building strong, positive relationship between public service agencies and the community, interns are expected to follow this Code of Conduct both within and outside of standard work hours. While interns' lives outside of Guam-PIC will not be micromanaged by the Guam-PIC Training Committee (GPTC), you will be seen by community members, which may include consumers and their families, other employees and agency administration, GovGuam employees and GovGuam administration, etc. For these reasons, please be mindful of your behavior and conduct when not at GBHWC. Even when in the community, please remember you are a representative of Guam-PIC and your graduate program.

Failure to meet these requirements may result in the initiation of the Guam-PIC Due Process Procedures.
